GDPR

General Data Protection Regulation ("GDPR") is active as of 25th May 2018. This legislation acts as an update to data protection guidelines already in place, with particular attention focused on the use of personal data.

Our commitment to you often requires us to use your data as part of our logistical and customer care obligations. In doing so it is important to us that we have your agreement for us to continue to do this. Your privacy is of fundamental importance to us and we take our responsibility regarding the security of your personal information extremely seriously.

We are - and have always been - committed to protecting your personal information and to being transparent about the information we store about you and what we do with it. Your data is securely stored electronically, and we do not share it with anyone else.

Provided you are happy with our commitment above, you need take no further action. Should you wish to discuss any issues raised further or opt out, please do contact us and we will be happy to discuss it with you.

you are responsible for keeping this password confidential. We ask you not to share a password with anyone.

Unfortunately, the transmission of information via the internet is not completely secure. Although we will do our best to protect your personal data, we cannot guarantee the security of your data transmitted to our site; any transmission is at your own risk. Once we have received your information, we will use strict procedures and security features to try to prevent unauthorised access.
